AcuCort is granted trademark protection for Zeqmelit® in Australia

AcuCort has been granted trademark protection in Australia by the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) for the Zeqmelit® oral film.

The granted trademark protection means that the brand name Zeqmelit® is given national protection in Australia. The trademark protection covers the goods and services included in the international registration.

The registration protection runs according to the dates that apply to the international registration and is renewed in connection with the renewal of the same, which must take place no later than January 9, 2033.

"Australia will be a large and important market for AcuCort when Zeqmelit® reaches commercialization phase, therefore it is strategically important that the product now has trademark protection in the country. The approval means that we effectively protect the company's intangible assets", says Jonas Jönmark, CEO of AcuCort.
